

Jonah Goldberg
Address on "Liberal Fascism"
The Heritage Foundation
January 9, 2008
<http://www.heritage.org/Press/Events/ev010908a.cfm>

Q&A session:

Now, why do I bring this up? It is not to defend Italian fascism. But it is to point out that Fascism, like Nationalism, is inherently going to bring up the internal characteristics of a people. And, uh, in Italy it brought out Italian characteristics; in Germany it brought out German characteristics. The German characteristics were a lot nastier. Um, and this is a big part of Daniel Jonah Goldhagen's argument about the, sort of, Hitler's willing executioners: there was an exterminationist [sic] sort of anti-Semitism in the genetic DN-, in the DNA of Germany that just didn't exist in Italy. There was anti-Semitism in Italy, but it was usually theological anti-Semitism. It was: 'you guys should be Christians'. It was not: 'you guys are biological vermin that need to be destroyed'.

Heritage has since removed its post of this event.

Quotes of related interest by this same author:

NR Online
July 12, 2014
Obama, Translated

*Unfortunately, if I were to express my real feelings about the weather on Twitter, it would read like Alistair Cooke walking into a backyard full of garden rakes; just one ear-shattering obscenity after another. Right now I could f-bomb Dresden.

NR Online
December 21, 2012
The Tired Race Card

But the inconvenient truth is that conservatives are not only not racist, they aren't a fraction as obsessed with race as liberals are.

But:
<http://www.nationalreview.com/corner/447635/monty-python-and-germans>